Alley speed limit set Fla., from July 27 through July 31. The council was told Lt. Nemeth plans to attend the convention on his vacation time.

An amended ordinance establishing a speed limit of 15 miles per hour in all alleys in Granite Gity was enacted by the City Council last week following discussion on a bill that originally would have set the restriction in only three alleys. On adopting a measure setting a speed limit in several alleys without making the restriction uniform throughout the city. Others protested that it would be a long and expensive task to play the company of the city. The criticance originally came before the council on a request by Alderman Walter Nonn of the Fifth Ward. It specified a 15-mile-per-hour speed limit in alleys between 20th and Denver streets, Denver and Cayung and W. 22nd streets, all in Nonn's ward. Non said he wanted the speed limit in these alleys because motorcyclists "are making a speedway out of them." He said the cyclists "are going crazy" riding through the alleys at high sections. THE SCHERMER BULLETIN

We are now into our second week of our new Top Value Stamp Program, and everyone seems to be pleased with it. Many of our old customers like the idea of being able to order premium merchandise out of the catalog, and we even saw a few new faces. Apparently, there are many Top Value Savers around who were just waiting to find out where they could get the catange again. stamps again.

Many people have asked us, "Why?" Well, we felt that the change to Top Value would be good for our customers for two reasons. First, Top Value is more Valuable. You get $3.75 in merchandise, or $2.50 cash for the same number of stamps as the old kind. Secondly, Top Value is a growing, aggressive company, and as time goes on, you will find that more and more stores will be giving them: so you will be able to fill your books with stamps you receive not only at Schermer's but also stamps you get when you do business at the Hardware Store, or at the Gas Station. This would not have been possible in our old program.

About grocery prices, sugar is on the increase again. So now would be a good time to stock up. You'll notice that we are featuring sugar in today's ad, so come on in, the price will be much higher in just a few weeks.

better control

The state of Illinois needs tighter controls regulating property and land appraisers, according to David Gordon, a senior real estate appraiser who spoke to the Breakfast Kiwanis Club at its Thursday morning meeting in Charlie's Restaurant

Gordon noted that Illinois has 'fairly good' controls on everything but real estate appraising. However, there are self-regulating associations of appraisers that have high standards and do exercise control over their members, he said.

Members of the club were reminded by Norman Kinder that the "Hole-in-one" tourney will be at the Arlington Golf Club Saturday and Sunday, July 19 and 20, and members should plan their schedule to be at the

Heating with an Electric Furnace

Named Smith Corp. officer

The electric furnace is one of the many types of electric heat being used in homes throughout Illinois today.

Similar in principle to the conventional furnace, the electric furnace uses electricity as its source of heat. This eliminates the need for a heat exchanger, burner and flue since there are no products of combustion to be removed.

A blower moves air through a filter into a compartment containing the electric heating elements. The heated air is then circulated through the house by ductwork as with a gas or oil-fired furnace. A central thermostat controls the temperature in the home.

The electric furnace is compact, clean, and can be installed anywhere since no flue is required. It is auitable for apartments, mobile homes and other small residences. It can easily be combined with central air conditioning to provide a year round comfort system. For further information about the electric furnace or any type of electric heat, call the Energy Use Advisor at Illinois Power Company.

continued as a single university with two diverse campuses, awkward though it might have been on occasions.

That wasn't what developed, though. What developed was essentially two separate universities with their own administration, each operated by the same people on a single board, but with a court yaystem staff super-imposed over the pair. It was an administrative disaster plan.

For that reason, we favored some drastic revision.

We have always thought a total separation was inevitable in the long run. Whether this was the time is now moot. enator Sam convinced his colleagues it was.

The argument against signing is basically "iffy," If this split takes place, some observers think other schools in other systems will lobby for separation. They don't think that is good.

It has been our view that a variation It has been our view that a variation of is might happen some day; all the state stems would be eliminated, substituting e Board of Higher Education to ad-nister a large number of separate cam-uses, with subordinate boards for each. That's a long way off, though, and the fify" splits are also just speculation, when suppose them.

Walker can ignore them.
What he can't ignore is an overriding new reason for signing the SIUE split:

If the relation of SIUE to Carbondale and the system super-administration was wkward, cumbersome, abrasive, hobbling efore, it would be impossible from now political question. But it surely would require employment of more personnel in local election offices around the state, thereby raising government cost.

SIUE has made its play openly, won openly, and its legislative spokesman has sounded off openly about the shackles incosed by the mother institution.

Each group or special interest expects government to be responsive to its appeal. What we as members of such groups must realize is that if we — all of us — get all our special interests satisfied, we can expect other groups to do likewise and the cost will be enormous.

Government gets its revenues from the pockets of all of us, and that is no bot-pockets of all of us, and some incomess well.

Whether it is revenue sharing money from the federal government (which that government has borrowed) or township road and bridge tax money, we taxpayers are responsible for paying or repaying it.

We do not expect legislators to forego all new spending programs or to confine themselves to dealing with those things that have no cost.

But we believe they should be cognizant of the tax pressures at all levels of governments.

But we believe mey should be cognitive of the tax pressures at all levels of government—not just the state level—and be extremely selective in those cost-increasing bills they approve.

Over-regulation 'protects' consumers against new products and lower costs

Following are the views of Dr. Murray L. Weidenbaum, economist and author who is director of the Center for the Study of American Business, Washington University, St. Louis:

Yes, this country is going through a second managerial revolution.

The first occurred many years ago, with the divorce of corporate ownership from management. That revolution involved the rise of professional managers, as distinct from owners.

This new revolution is far more subtle. It involves the shift of decision-making from managers, who represent the shareholders, to a cadre of government officials, government inspectors and government regulators.

To me, there is a close relationship between them and the very close, day-to-day government regulation of the defense industry—the most closely regulated industry in our society.

More closely regulated that willities? wnen you look at the power of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, it is really scary. The commission has the ability, and has used it on occasion, to drive a company out of business—through the commission own mistakes. The commission of the top the commission of the business by inadvertently putting its products on the banned list.

Later, the commissioners of the commission of

More closely regulated than utilities?
Oh, yes. We think of utilities as our most tightly regulated industry. But they aren't regulated anything like the defense industry. Look at the regulations issued by state utility commissions, and you are talking about a pamphlet.
Look at the regulations given the defense contractor by the rederal government and you are talking, literally, about volumes.

Do you think public opinion

The you think public oplusion will change?

I think so, I am an optimist.

But a patient oplimist.

To me, Congress's decision to reverse the federal regulators on the interlock, seat-belt system this year was encouraging. It's an example of what can happen when the public gets aroused.

It became obvious to

It became obvious to imericans that they were saying through the nose for a complicated system they didn't want. It was extravagant nonsense.

Congress got the picture pretty fast. It threw the interlock out the window. But only, of course, after the auto industry had spent millions to perfect and install it.

decide what uses those goals.

There's no one royal road to safety. safety.
Some companies may find that it is most effective to redesign their equipment others that a training program is best for them. Still others more work on supervision. Get away from the emphasis on detailed federal rules and regulations.

Get away from the emphasis on detailed federal rules and regulations.
For one tung, from the data. For one tung, from the data there's no indication that these government regulators have cut accident rates in industry.
So, even if you follow them to the letter, that doesn't mean the place is safer. It just means you won't get in trouble.
That's the bureaucratic

That's the Dureaucratic mentality. We have to realize there are more effective ways to using the private sector to achieve national objectives. Are more regulations inevitable; the short run. I am afraid we are in for more inevitable?

In the short run, I am afraid we are in for more.
I have looked at the proposed new legislation in Congress—and I'm afraid that, for the next year, business must brace their straigackes.
In fact, at least 23 congressmen in the House literally believe you should have to get Washington's permission to go out of business. January, It would require a two-year prenotification to the Secretary of Labor to close or move a business—if that would require a two-year prenotification to the condition of the con

Take a leaf from the environmentalists. They pushed do anything, anywhere, you must determine what impact this will have on the environment. I would like to turn that around.

I would like to turn that around.
I'd like to see legislation which says that, before EPA or anything, it must file a statement describing what this will do to the economy—an economic impact statement.
Can business look for allies clewhere?

NEW REPAIR PROGRAM at the Coordinated

NEW REPAIR PROGRAM at the Coordinated Youth Services building, 1255 Niedringhaus Ave., has Gary Ely, 15, of 2832 Denver St., working on bicycles to put them in safe operating order. Ely is employed under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act. He is requesting persons with old bicycles to donate them to the youth service, which then sells them at low prices to families who can't afford new bicycles.
